- 1- LPI in Project titled: Youth, New Media and Social Change' research project which led to the organisation of an international conference on the same topic on the 8th May 2010, at the University of Northampton, UK.
- 2- LPI in Project titled: 'Reality TV programmes on Arab TV channels' (March-2013 –April 2014). This project focused on the study of season two of the Arab reality TV programme titled Arab Idol, a series broadcast on the Saudi satellite channel MBC (Middle East Broadcasting Company) between 8 March 2013 and 22 June 2013. It explored the rapid success of this genre on pan-Arab TV and attempted to decipher its audience's interaction both online and on TV. It also sought to unpack issues relating to the way identity, culture and nationalism were represented and debated. This project was privately funded and the findings were published in a refereed journal paper.
- 3- LPI in Project titled: 'Discursive Language and the Politics of Fear: The Representation of Islam and Muslims in the British Tabloid Press'. This project analyses British tabloid newspapers to unearth the representation of Islam and Muslims. It looks at the evolving discursive language and its impact on the reinvention and diffusion of negative stereotypes such that the 'terrorism' frame. With specific focus the study considers the media's systematic distortion of Islamic conceptions/religious terminologies such as 'Islamist', 'Fatwa', 'Sharia', 'Jihad', 'Hijab' and 'Islamic State' which are founded on what Edward Said calls the 'ideology of difference'. This project was privately funded and lasted for one year duration (Sep 2014-August 2015).
- 4- LPI in Project titled: 'Digital Youth in Qatar: Negotiating identity through social media networks' (January 2016-May 2017). The project studied the multiplicity of digital spaces which allow the youth nowadays to easily commute between multiple platforms and consume a multitude of media content in a manner inexperienced before. Through the implementation of a survey in addition to interviews among Qatar University students, it attempts to analyse the complex media consumption environment in which Qatari youth engage and the prospects of that consumption on their behaviour. This project is privately funded and the findings of this research will be published in a refereed journal paper.
